A Members-Only, Weekly Publication

THIS WEEK'S WINE SPECTATOR INSIDER takes you to two of the most august wine regions of the Old World: Germany's Mosel, source of many of the world's finest Rieslings, and Italy's Langhe, home to the Nebbiolo reds that wear the Barolo badge. Eighteen Barolos reviewed by Bruce Sanderson in this report include gems from Piedmont heavyweights Bruno Giacosa, Luciano Sandrone and Gaja, while the 18 German auslese Rieslings, reviewed by Kim Marcus, are led by selections from Fritz Haag and Joh. Jos. Prüm. Three classic-scoring sweet and off-dry whites from the small plots that line the Mosel are joined by a 96-point Barolo in this week's Hot Wines section, on page 4.
