

Barolo Docg Vigna Terlo Costa Grimaldi

Vintage 2011

Denomination: Barolo Docg

Variety: Nebbiolo

Seasonal trend: The harvest 2011 will remember over time as a vintage outside the box, very early and with yields in the vineyard is not excessive. Winter has passed regularly both in terms of temperatures and rainfall, which intensified above all in March (176 mm monthly average compared to around 90 mm in 2010), resulting in good water availability in the soil since the beginning of spring.

The high temperatures of the month of April, with highs above 20 ° C and a monthly average of 16 ° C, caused an early start of the vegetative season.

Between the end of June and the beginning of July, average daily temperatures were not particularly high (22 ° C average), but the vines continued their physiological cycle without any slowing down.

During the month of August there were very high average daily temperatures (even above 30 ° C) which favored the low yield in the vineyard, reducing the quantity of product, but favoring the growth of healthy bunches with an interesting aromatic framework.

For the Nebbiolo vine, rain was very providential during the first weekend of September (about 20mm), which combined with a lowering of the night temperatures of the second part of the month, allowed to reach a fine balance of the phenolic components of the grapes favoring their complete maturation. Great wines suitable for a good aging can be expected.
